Whether defining a space or creating a statement, rugs provide a quick and stylish decorating solution.

When selecting a rug it's a balance between colour, pattern, area and scale. As colour and pattern will be defined by the look and feel you want to achieve, we guide you through key scale and area considerations so you will always step into style.

scale

Scale is a key factor when looking at different rug sizes, as a small rug placed in front of a large couch will look lost. Likewise, a large rug can overpower a small space, making it appear even smaller than what it actually is.

For the best results, we recommend making your rug the focal point of your space upon which you can then make other decorating decisions on.

map the area

To help determine the correct size, lay a sheet or blanket in your space, where you envisage your rug to sit.

This will allow you to fold the sheet to match the different sized rugs you are considering, while also helping you determine which size best suits your space.

dining

When selecting a rug for your dining area, you need to ensure the rug is large enough to frame chairs that have been pulled back from the table.

living

There are three different ways rugs can work in your living area, depending on the look and feel you want to create:

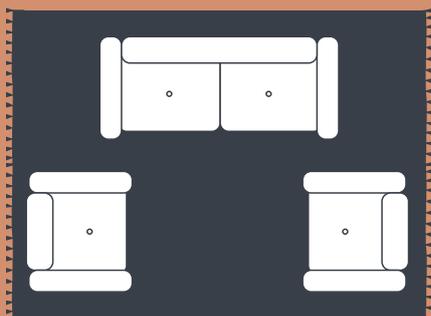

1. No furniture on your rug – If you are introducing a rug with a strong pattern or colour, this style will allow your rug to be the statement piece within your space.

2. Front lounge legs on your rug – This works well for those wanting to tie their room together, to create a casual and inviting environment.

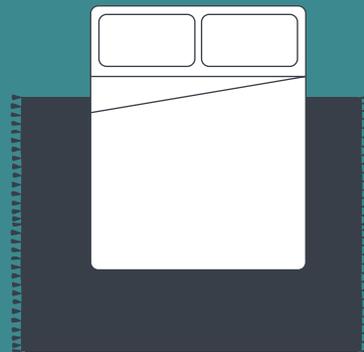

3. All furniture on your rug – This style is ideal for those wanting to achieve a formal living area.

bedroom

Depending on what you want to achieve, there are two main ways rugs can work in your bedroom:

1. Under your bed – To treat your feet each morning and night, allow 2/3 of the rug to be under your bed, ensuring the width extends beyond the sides.

2. At the end of your bed – To create an extra layer within your room, add a rug at the end of your bed, ensuring it extends beyond the sides.

rug care

Once you find the rug to suit your style, these tips will help ensure it lasts for many years to come.

1. Rotation – To encourage even wear, we recommend you rotate your rug once a year.
2. Vacuuming – To keep your rug clean, regularly vacuum your rug using a low-powered vacuum cleaner. If fibre ends appear on the surface, don't pull them, simply use scissors to trim the fibres evenly in-line with your rug surface.
3. Attend to stains immediately – When attending to stains it is important you do not rub the stained area, as this will only penetrate the stain deeper into the fibres. Instead use a blotting motion and follow the cleaning instructions provided by your rug manufacturer. If you are unable to remove the stain, contact a professional rug cleaning specialist.
4. Professional cleaning – To maintain your rug's stunning looks, we recommend you get it cleaned by a professional rug cleaning specialist every three – five years.
